

Chamber of Commerce Holds Annual Banquet

Some of Its Accomplishments Reviewed in Speeches and Reports at Annual Gathering at the Governor Clinton Hotel—Growth of City Outlined by Max L. Reben, Retiring President—President E. Frank Flanagan and New Directors Introduced.

In the past three years building activities in Kingston totalled $4,000,000, which is a conservative estimate and ten per cent could be added to that amount bringing the total of the city's building program to over five million dollars, said Max L. Reben, retiring president of the Chamber of Commerce, in his report on the annual banquet held Tuesday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel. The organization has closed the year with all debts paid and with more money on hand than ever before.

The annual dinner was one of the most successful ever held by the Chamber of Commerce and was largely attended, every seat at the dining tables being occupied when the dinner was called to order. During the evening Messrs. Reben and Flanagan rendered a fine musical program and community singing between the serving of the courses was led by Paul Zucca.

The guests of honor were Mayor E. J. Dempsey and Assemblyman Dempsey Davis.

As the dinner gathered around the table, America was sung and the invocation delivered by the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

After the serving of the roast beef dinner several solos were sung by Harry Lazarus, who possesses one of the finest baritone voices in the city. Mr. Lazarus sang "The Ball of St. Mary's" and "The Vagabond" and was forced to respond to an encore, singing "On the Road to Mandalay."

Directors' Report. Secretary Louis B. Cox outlined the work that the organization had accomplished in the year that has passed in the following interesting report of the board of directors:

Kingston-on-the-Hudson has a background, a wealth of history such as few cities can boast. This history and the story it tells, every citizen has reason to be justly proud. However, history is always in the making and at this time it is our purpose to review only the past year being that we can prove to you that progress has been made and that growth is the kind of history in which we should be most interested. That our city is making rapid strides forward and that it is growing faster than other cities in the Hudson Valley cannot be denied, our last State census is the proof we offer.

Our progress and growth are demonstrated by means of many new homes, and in homes remodeled and made up to date, in splendid school buildings, a new hotel, new theatres, remodeled stores, improved transportation facilities, better street conditions, pavements and lighting, and a new industry, all of which tend to make Kingston a better city in which to work and in which to live. The Chamber of Commerce as an organization is vitally interested in every branch of improvement mentioned because of the fact that before it is possible to secure new industries it is necessary to prove to the prospect that Kingston has not only a favorable site or suitable space but also that housing conditions are good, that the right kind of transportation is to be had, both for out-going and in-coming shipments. We must show that our schools, churches, places of amusement, our stores, etc., are on a par or better than that of other localities offered. There also enters into the picture the water supply, gas and electric rates, price of coal, steam, labor conditions, and many other questions all of which have to be answered to the satisfaction of the prospect before he is convinced that he should locate here. One other very vital question always put up to us is that of finances. On this last subject the Chamber has taken the stand that it will pay no more. However, we do say that if the present can show proof of prosperity, a claim reward, a market for its products, then we are willing to approach our banks or our members asking them for aid.

We believe that Kingston has much to offer prospective industry and we are proud of our city as we lay its advantages before them in search of a city in which to locate.

Some of our members recently attended a meeting in Troy, N. Y. The speaker of the evening was a man who has had many years experience in the Chamber of Commerce work and in the course of his remarks he said that industry was not growing, or looking new business. To illustrate this he said that his own organization

Tragic Career of "Mad" Empress Ended by Death

Charlotte, Once Empress of Mexico, Had Suffered from Clouded Mind Since Her Husband, Maximilian, Was Executed Nearly Sixty Years Ago—Lived in Retirement in Belgium.

Brussels, Jan. 19 (AP).—Charlotte, once Empress of Mexico as the wife of Emperor Maximilian, died today at her chateau near here. Thus came to a close one of the most tragic careers in European history, for her mind had been clouded ever since she heard of the execution of her husband, Maximilian, at Queretaro, Mexico, in 1867.

Several times in the last few years her strong constitution enabled Charlotte to withstand serious illness, but when last Saturday she was stricken with a severe attack of influenza, the physicians took into account her advanced age—she was 86—and held out little hope for recovery.

At times over the week end she seemed to improve; then on Tuesday morning pneumonia developed.

There was a hurried consultation of physicians and Charlotte's nephew, King Albert, and the others of the royal family were summoned to the sick room. They were at the bedside when she died peacefully.

Brother's Friend Constant Attendant.

Throughout the ex-empress's illness, in fact throughout the years of her retirement, she had a constant attendant in Baron Auguste Godinot, who was a close friend of her brother, King Leopold II.

Baron Auguste, knowing that the empress was soon to die, spoke wistfully last night of his relations with the Belgian royal house, of the beauty and charm of Charlotte as a girl before she married the Austrian Archduke Maximilian.

"It is my sad privilege," he said, "to bury the royal family. Leopold was right when he told me years ago 'Empress Charlotte is to bury us all, except yourself.'"

The Baron, as administrator of Empress Charlotte's property, added that there was no truth in the reports of her great fortune. While it was once something like 10,000,000 gold francs, he explained that it dwindled considerably the last few years because of the depreciation of Russian and German shares.

Romance and Pathos in Life.

The life of the "mad Empress" Charlotte was filled both with romance and pathos. For more than half a century, after she fell in a faint at the feet of Napoleon III at the court of St. Cloud when he refused the aid to France for her husband, she was considered by many to have been insane but whether she was really mentally unbalanced has remained a mystery for all that time.

Charlotte was the daughter of Leopold I of Belgium, the sister of Leopold II and the wife of Maximilian, archduke of Austria, who was shot at Queretaro, June 19, 1867, at the end of his ill-starred Mexican adventure. She was born at Laeken, Belgium, in 1840 and baptized "Marie Charlotte Anne Augustine Victoire Leopoldine." Her mother was Princess Louise of Orleans, the daughter of Louis Philippe, King of the French. Charlotte was an aunt of King Albert of the Belgians.

Married in Seventeenth Year.

Princess Charlotte was reared with great care at the court of her father and as a girl was not only noted for her beauty but for her rare gifts, being possessed of quite remarkable artistic and literary talent. In her seventeenth year she married the archduke Maximilian of Hapsburg, a brother of the Emperor Francis Joseph and her early married life gave promise of much happiness.

Maximilian was then chief of the Austrian navy and soon afterward, as governor of Milan, took up his residence at the charming castle of Miramar near Trieste where the young couple for a time led an almost ideal existence. The archduke was a man of liberal views and attracted the Italian people to him but the bureaucracy managed to undo the good impression which he created. During the negotiations at Villafranca Napoleon III offered to create the Kingdom of Venetia for the archduke but Francis Joseph refused.

Maximilian Accepted Throne. A voyage to Brazil in 1864 shattered the Archduke's health but later when the great "Mexican plot" to overthrow the republic and place a European prince on the throne was hatched by Napoleon, Maximilian was approached. The city of Mexico had already fallen to the French troops. An assembly of nobles offered him the throne. After long hesitation Maximilian accepted and in May, 1864, he and his consort arrived at the city of Mexico.

The Empress' role in the subsequent history of the Mexican Empire and its complete collapse after Napoleon III abandoned it was large.

The loss of Maximilian's initial popularity was largely due to measures which she is supposed to have inspired and when at last Maximilian, maddened by Napoleon's desertion and the impossibility of meeting the enormous debts he had piled up, determined to abdicate it was she who persuaded him to flee to Paris and Rome to plead his cause and to

IN UNITY IS STRENGTH SAYS SAM BERNSTEIN

Sam Bernstein, member of the firm of Sam Bernstein & Company, Wall street clothiers, in speaking of the Merchants' Co-operative Sale movement, says: "In unity there is strength. The Merchants' Co-operative Sale movement was a big step forward. It opened up much better than any sale heretofore and no doubt but for the inclement weather and severe snow storm it would have been the biggest community sale ever put on by the merchants. As it is, trade has kept up remarkably. The people know every merchant was offering real goods at real savings. I believe in the continuation of the idea and in the future success of these sales. Co-operative sales are good for the community and particularly so where we put up a united front as in the present ten day Merchants' Co-operative Sale."

1866 at the age of 26 she arrived in the French capital. Her mission was a complete failure. Napoleon III turned his back on the man whose throne he had raised. At Rome she had no better success and her reason seemed to be giving way under the strain.

Suffered Mental Breakdown. After Maximilian had been captured, tried and shot, apparently her mental breakdown became complete and she was found one day wandering in the streets of Rome, babbling like a child. When taken charge of she was washing her hands in one of the street fountains. An appeal was made to the Tulleries for assistance but it was repulsed. She retired to Miramar and subsequently was received at the Chateau de Laeken near Brussels by her brother. Here for more than 50 years she had dragged out a miserable, solitary existence. Very rarely she received a visit from a member of her family.

The fiction that she was still Empress of Mexico was continued by the widow of Maximilian and her little court of five persons and also by the Belgian royal family during all the time she remained a recluse at the Laeken chateau.

May Have Feigned Dementia.

The question whether she really was insane has been a matter of much speculation. For a long time the ex-empress suffered from hallucinations of persecution but these gradually subsided and eventually disappeared. There have been many instances showing that her mind was clear. Many friends maintained that she feigned dementia through pride so that she could continue to act, talk and be treated still as an Empress. Her relatives never took any action to have her declared incompetent as the Belgian law requires in cases of violent insanity.

The ex-empress some months ago startled her entourage by showing indications of independence and sanity. She summoned Colonel Van Eekhaudt, commander of the castle, and asked:

"I am entirely free, am I not?"

"Certainly Your Majesty," replied the colonel.

The former empress indicated that that being the case she would go outside the boundaries of the extensive forests surrounding the chateau. In the course of her customary walk she requested the guard at the great iron gates leading to the main road to let her pass. He did so and for the first time in more than 50 years the former empress walked about 100 yards beyond the domain in which she lived in such seclusion. The ladies in charge remained at a distance observing her. Charlotte returned with a pleased air and several times afterward repeated the experience, but never going far on the road.

Maintained Imperial Court. Her chateau was situated several miles outside Brussels in a park of about 400 acres, which was surrounded by a high iron fence. In her latter years the members of her household kept up the imperial court, maintaining every form of respect and deference, much as though Charlotte were a reigning sovereign.

The former empress continued her practice of rising about seven in the morning, and after making a careful toilet, went for a walk in the gardens or for a drive to the more remote parts of the domain. After dinner it was her custom to talk with members of her court or to listen to music of the piano or phonograph, both of which she was very fond. She treated everyone near her with lofty courtesy.

Never Mentioned Husband.

Never in the 50 years or more was Charlotte known to have mentioned her deceased and executed Emperor husband, Maximilian, and even in all that time was the word "death" spoken in her presence. She was never known to have spoken of whether she was sane or insane or realized that she had lost her title. Neither was it known whether she left a will.

When the Germans swept through Belgium at the beginning of the European war they left the savior of the ex-empress unharmed by shot and shell, for the Austrian flag floated over the gateway of the grounds. Later, however, the Governor General at Brussels was obliged to order the following notice placed at the entrance to the grounds to prevent annoyance of the Empress by the increasing number of transients curious to see her:

"This habitation, the property of Her Majesty of Mexico, Archduchess Maximilian of Austria, was destroyed by Emperor Francis Joseph."

"I instruct German soldiers passing here not to risk the loss and to leave the place intact."

Webb Bridge Bill Goes to Governor

Passage of Mid-Hudson Bridge Bill in Assembly Was by Unanimous Consent—Cuvillier Introduces Amended Resolution.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—The assembly had as virtually its only business today the passage of the Webb-Hackett bill appropriating $4,000,000 from the public buildings bond issue for completion of the mid-Hudson vehicular bridge at Poughkeepsie. The bill was passed by the senate yesterday, and now goes to the governor for his approval. Passage of the measure in the Assembly was by unanimous consent. Assemblyman Eberly Hutchinson, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said that the bill has the approval of the governor, and the appropriation it made immediately available will permit completion of the structure several months in advance of the time that would be necessary otherwise.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York, introduced an amended form of his resolution calling upon congress to order a constitutional convention to repeal the 18th Amendment. The amended form eliminates repeal as the purpose of the convention and substitutes amendment. The amendment desired by Mr. Cuvillier would remove from the federal government the regulation of the sale and transportation of intoxicating beverages in the case of states which have, by referendum vote determined that such regulation shall be a state matter. The amendment was introduced at the suggestion of United States Senator William Cabell Bruce of Maryland, who suggested the course in a letter received yesterday by Mr. Cuvillier.

Minority Leader Maurice Bloch introduced two of the Democratic "reform" measures, one providing for restoration of the direct primaries for statewide offices and supreme court justices and the other for the filing of statements of election receipts and expenditures before instead of after election.

Nation Without Woman Governor

Mrs. Ferguson's Clemency Acts Estimated at $3,595—Granted Over 300 Releases During Her Last Four Days in Office.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 19 (AP).—Miriam A. Ferguson's abandonment of the gubernatorial toga to resume the role of a housewife and a grandmother, today found the nation without a woman governor, while the number of persons in Texas penal institutions had been materially reduced by her unprecedented issuance of clemency proclamations.

Continuing to sign pardons and paroles until a short time before she relinquished her office to the youthful Dan Moody yesterday, Mrs. Ferguson brought her clemency acts to an estimated total of 3,595. This was placed such proclamations issued by Mrs. Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, prior to his impeachment in 1917, well above the 5,000 mark.

As Governor Moody occupied the executive office for the first full day, clerks in the office of the secretary of state were completing the recording of more than 300 releases granted during the last four days Mrs. Ferguson held office.

FOUGHKEEPSIE PROPOSSES $200,000 FOR INDUSTRIES

Two important steps towards materially aiding the industrial expansion movement in Poughkeepsie were taken by the common council Monday night when it appointed a committee to present a bill at the Legislature in Albany Friday permitting the city to spend money to the extent of $200,000 on industrial development and gave its sanction to the plan of Alderman-at-large Frank G. Kearney to seek the co-operation of the board of supervisors in establishing a flying field near the city for airplanes on a proposed New York to Chicago route with a rate of fare of $50 a passenger.

Bright Prospects For Arbitration On Mexican Law

Kellogg Announces His Approval of That Method in Approaching Settlement After Half-Hour Talk With President Coolidge.

Washington, Jan. 19 (AP).—Prospects for arbitration of the dispute with Mexico over that country's new oil and land laws have brightened with the announcement by Secretary Kellogg, after a conference with President Coolidge, that he approved that method in approaching a settlement.

President Calles of Mexico has indicated unofficially that he might look upon arbitration as a way out of the controversy, and Mr. Kellogg's announced views are expected to bring to the forefront in future discussions this means of composing the situation.

The sudden switch of the spotlight from the civil war in Nicaragua to Mexico came last night when the Secretary of State, after a half hour talk with the President, declared in a formal statement that he approved a resolution introduced by Senator Robinson, the Democratic floor leader, calling for submission of the Mexican dispute to arbitration or to some impartial tribunal.

He said he welcomed such an expression of opinion by the senate and added that for some time he had been giving careful consideration to the question of the definite application of the arbitration principle to the existing controversy with Mexico.

The Arkansas senator's resolution has been referred to the foreign relations committee, which had planned today to take up resolutions seeking withdrawal of American naval forces from Nicaragua and to decide whether it would make public a "corrected" copy of Secretary Kellogg's testimony on Nicaragua which was delivered before it in executive session.

The arbitration resolution, introduced after the Mexican-Nicaraguan debate had bobbed up with renewed vigor in both houses and after another White House pronouncement on the subject, was said by its authors to have the endorsement of Chairman Borah, of the Foreign Relations Committee, who favored arbitration in a speech last week, and Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the committee.

It declares that while it is the duty of the United States government to protect the lives and property of its nationals in foreign countries, and that this duty should not be neglected, it is nevertheless sound policy, consistent with the honor and best interest of the United States, and promotive of international peace and good will, to submit to arbitration, or to some impartial tribunal empowered to apply the principles of international law, the "diplomatic controversies" with Mexico.

Young's Services In Great Demand

Victor of Catalina Channel Swim Receives Many Lucrative Offers—Wrigley Volunteers as Financial Advisor.

Los Angeles, Jan. 19 (AP).—Rival cities, almost a continent apart, today tugged at the heart and the purse strings of George Young, 17-year-old victor of the Santa Catalina Channel swim and winner of the $25,000 purse of the ocean marathon.

Toronto, Ont., his home town, where his mother lives, held forth to the youthful champion the acclaim of home folks, respect of the city and dominion officials, hero worship by his erstwhile chums and playmates, and a more substantial reward in the report that a $50,000 contract for appearance in the district awaited.

Los Angeles and the neighboring movie studios also promised him a golden harvest. The $25,000 purse was just the appetizer for the lavish feast spread in the promise at least, before the lad. His first adventure brings him $1,000 a night for a brief series of appearances at a Hollywood Theatre.

A definite offer of $50,000 for a film contract is being considered, his manager, trainer and financial partner, Frank "Doc" O'Byrne, said. Pleas for stage appearances and other schemes for cashing in on his now famous name, are being studied by O'Byrne, assisted by William Wrigley, Jr., millionaire donor of the channel prize, who has volunteered as financial advisor to the pair.

O'Byrne is opposing any return of his protégé to Toronto at this time, confident that for him to do so would be a financial sacrifice. Himself a Canadian and former resident of Toronto, O'Byrne yesterday announced that he will not claim his 40 per cent of the swim prize provided in his contract, but will give the entire $25,000 to Young. This is in line, he said, with his original intention. He will claim his percentage on the remainder of the first year's earnings of the swimmer, however.

Pleas for Young's return to Canada are prompted by Canadian promoters, desirous of obtaining his signature on a contract. O'Byrne charges.

Four Year Term Fight on Again

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—The fight for a four-year term for governor is on again in the New York legislature.

In theory, Republicans and Democrats are agreed on the proposal. They differ as to the method by which the proposed law would take effect.

The Democratic minority favors a four year term after an election in November, 1930, and every four years thereafter, bringing the election in "off" years. The Republicans are committed to a plan which would put the election in the presidential year.

Democratic leaders point out that national issues ought not to be confused with state issues.

"A state election conducted along with a presidential election always means the subordination of state issues to national issues," Senator Downing, minority leader, said yesterday, when he offered a concurrent resolution which would amend the Constitution. "The state issues are overshadowed and ill considered, because the voters are confused by the injection of national politics."

A Republican resolution advocated by Senator Warren T. Thayer, Chateaugay, was passed last year. It calls for the election in presidential years, beginning in 1928. Passage of the resolution this year would mean subordination to the people at the next general election. The lieutenant-governor would also be elected for four years.

Senator Thayer's resolution also calls for two year terms for assemblymen and four year terms for senators.

Revolt Failed, Declares Calles

In Reply to Agrarians, Who Sought Arms With Which to Assist the Federalists in Stamping Out "Catholic Rebellion".

Mexico City, Jan. 19 (AP).—Attempts by "fanatical" elements to carry out a nation-wide revolution have thus far failed, President Calles declares in a reply to Agrarian communists asking for arms with which to assist the federalists in stamping out the so-called Catholic rebellion.

Since the Agrarian party ordered its members to cooperate with the federal forces the presidential bureau has been inundated with petitions from the Agrarian communists throughout the country asking for arms.

President Calles refused the petitions with the declaration that the army is at present strong enough to quell the uprising. Arms were distributed among the Agrarians of Jalisco and Guanajuato, he says, because of the exceptional "fanatical" activities there.

CLERK MARRIED 85,000 COUPLES

Berlin-Mackay and Salm-
Rogers Among Weddings
Performed by Official.

New York.—J. J. McCormick, deputy city clerk, who has in the opinion of confirmed optimists conferred more happiness on humanity than any other man in the world, celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday by following his accustomed pursuit of uniting couples in matrimony in the city marriage chapel. Mr. McCormick has married more than 85,000 couples during the five and a half years in which he has presided over the marriage chapel.

When asked whether he regarded his record creditable or otherwise he replied firmly:

"I am not ashamed of anything I have ever done."

Mr. McCormick professed to be an absolute lack of bias on the subject of brides.

All Brides Look Alike.

"All brides look alike to me," he said. "I have seen so many of them that I no longer regard them with any attention. They all look like a mass of feathers."

Despite this apparent lack of romantic feeling, however, he sturdily defended his belief that most marriages are brought about by true love.

"I see little difference in the couples that come before me," he said. "Whether they are rich or poor, young or old, black or white, they seem to be really anxious to get married, and that's all there is about it. I don't believe the young ones have any more chance of being happy than the older couples."

Mr. McCormick begins marrying people every morning promptly at ten o'clock and continues his particular kind of labor of love until four in the afternoon, taking only a brief time for luncheon. If he were a "two-hour for luncheon" man, it is estimated that 5,500 couples would have been prevented from marrying during the last five and a half years.

He has reduced marrying to a fine art and is regarded as the most efficient marrier in the world. He can unite any couple in just a minute and a half. On his high record day he married 112 couples. The flood tide of matrimony comes in June, he has found, and Saturday morning is the big time of any week.

The most talked-of marriage which Mr. McCormick could recall having performed was that of Irving Berlin and Miss Ellen Mackay.

"I did not know who they were," he said. "I did not know anything about it. I was just going out to lunch when one of the other fellows in the office said: 'There's a couple'd like to be married right off. Could you do it before you go out?' 'Sure,' I said, and in they came. Afterward I found out it was quite an occasion."

Count Ludwig Salm Hoogstraeten and Miss Millicent Rogers also availed themselves of Mr. McCormick's kind offices when they contracted marriage, the difficulties of which have since been pressed around the world. The list of other notables at whose marriage he has officiated was too long for him to give.

Contrast in Weddings.

Sometimes the would-be bride and bridegroom and their attendants are beautifully dressed, carrying bouquets of orchids or lilies of the valley as large as their smiles. And sometimes they are so poor that the $4 needed for the license and marriage fees seems a fortune.

In fact, there are occasions, said Mr. McCormick, when a couple who didn't suspect that $4 is the cost of matrimony of the municipal brand, are faced with the calamitous discovery that they haven't enough funds between them to carry on.

This happened with one wedding party whose exchange supplied the $2 required for the license, but left 50 cents short on the marriage fee. The aggregate fortune of bride, bridegroom, and two attendants was $8.50.

Nothing dismayed the bridegroom, who asked that the ceremony be postponed a few minutes while he sought his banker outside the municipal building. The bride and the best man and bride-maid waited in the anteroom while Mr. McCormick presided with the wedding of more richly dowered couples.

Presently the bridegroom returned triumphant.

"I've got it," he announced, presenting the missing half dollar. "I locked the wedding ring."

Your Income Tax

The normal tax rate under the revenue act of 1926 is 1% per cent on the first $4,000 in excess of the personal exemption, credit for dependents, etc., 3 per cent on the next $4,000, and 5 per cent on the balance.

The surtax rates apply to net income in excess of $10,000, as in the revenue act of 1924. The maximum rate, however, under the 1926 act, is reduced to 20 per cent, which applies to net income in excess of $100,000, instead of a maximum of 40 per cent on net income in excess of $500,000, as was provided by the 1924 act.

The exemptions are $1,500 for single persons, and $3,500 for married persons living together, and heads of families. In addition a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each person dependent upon him for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. Such dependent need not be a relative of the taxpayer nor a member of his household.

The term "mentally or physically defective" includes not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

A taxpayer, though unmarried, who supports in his home one or more relatives over whom he exercises family control, is the head of a family and entitled to the same exemption allowed a married person.

Also he may claim $400 for each dependent. For example, a widower who supports in his home an aged mother and daughter 17 years old is entitled to an exemption of $3,500 as the head of a family, plus a credit of $400 for each dependent, a total of $4,300. The $400 credit, however, does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer, though one

EVENING
FAIRY TALE

SAFE FROM THE STORM

After the upset from the sleigh and the righting of it again, John and Trotty decided they would stop over at a farmhouse for a little warmth before they went on to the party, where they had been expected for some time.

But even the wind did not seem to have the energy it had had, nor did the snow continue to come down quite so furiously.

"I believe," John said, "I really do believe, it's letting up a little."

"So do I," agreed Trotty. "I hope," she added, "they will make that wonderful thick buttery toast where the butter oozes out of it. A great plate full of it would be nice."

"Oh, they always make a lot. Country people never want to waste a moment, when it's possible to feed you." "It won't take our appetites away for the supper party, I feel sure of that," Trotty said. "I feel as though I could eat all they gave me and still be hungry."

They talked the rest of the time about food! It was a perfect topic of conversation now that they had made up their minds to stop.

Just for the sake of saving the others a little less worry, John had argued with himself, it was mean to make Trotty go so long without a scrap of warmth or food. For himself, while the rest and food would be perfect, he rather dreaded stopping.

It would be so difficult to go on again, so hard to make Daniel start forth once more into the snowstorm after stopping and letting him think that he was through. And then, since they had got out of the woods, John did not mind anything. It might be slow going, but there in the deep woods he had felt uncertain and there had been danger of a broken sleigh and snowbound off where no one would think of finding them. The snow would have covered up their tracks as soon as they were made.

The family at the second house down the road were wide-eyed with excitement and pleasure at having such interesting guests. There was plenty of food to be had, all they had been thinking about and much more beside, had their wet clothes steamed before the fire as they thawed out a little at a time and cautiously so as not to get chilblains.

"Well, well, well," the old grandfather of the household spoke, "I don't know that I ever had a much more interesting ride myself but there was a time— and he told stories of storms he had known. John and Trotty felt splendidly important talking with these hardened people of the woods and the coast. The old grandfather had been a deep sea fisherman in his day but his son's wife had persuaded her husband to lumber it instead.

It was with new courage and new nerve that they went out into the night again, the night that was so snowy that John and Trotty felt as though they were almost the only two human beings alive in this snow world.

"You've not far now," they were told as they went off with thanks bidding from their lips and grateful appreciation the filling some funny little part of each of them which they supposed would be called the heart.

"Our people are so hospitable," Trotty said, "I don't believe there are people so hospitable anywhere." "I think you're right," John replied. "After all we've never been anywhere else."

"Maybe not," Trotty answered. "But I feel quite sure there is no other country like this—no other scenery or woods or rocks or sea or anything."

"They could see the club ahead. The snow was beginning to stop. It was really this time, not their imagination. They could see far around them now. They even thought they could detect a few stars in the heavy, heavy sky. Now they were safe, safe from the storm!

"Probably a Fat-Head!" Trotty said. "What? you want a rabbit? Oh, when I was an office boy, I had such fat heads before I got out. Office boys—yes, etc. but perhaps you was one of those fat-headed ones who can't work a safe—Blessed!"

YEARS OF EXPERIENCE IN WATCHING PARADES HAS TAUGHT WINSLOW THE VALUE OF PREPAREDNESS, SO HE IS LEAVING NOTHING TO CHANCE, WHEN THE ANTI-NOISE SOCIETY MARCHES TO THE POLICE STATION TO PROTEST HEM'S DECISION THAT NIGHT WAS THE BEST TIME TO OVERHAUL A CAR.

NOW, MEN, IF WE EXPECT TO MAKE THE CHIEF OF POLICE SIT UP AND TAKE NOTICE, WE'LL HAVE TO BE MORE SNAPPY. TRY IT OVER AGAIN... EYES FRONT!... TO THE FORWARD MARCH!!

GALLOOT! KEEP OFF MY DOGS!!

IF, AS YOU SAY, MISS KEAT, YOU WAS THE DRESSMAKER FOR ALL THE ROYALTIES IN EUROPE, FITTING UNIFORMS OUGHT TO COME SECOND HAND TO YOU, WHY YOU SQUAWK OVER ARTY'S SUIT IS BEYOND ME. IT'S ONLY SINCE THE BOER WAR HE AINT WORN IT.

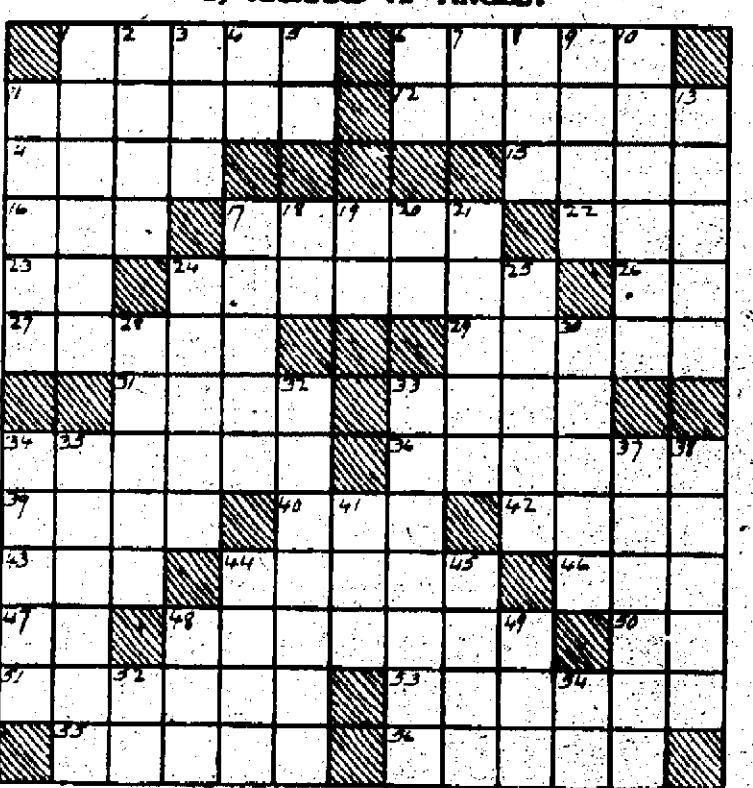

HEY! I'M NO SQUAWKER EITHER. PROCEED OR PULL THEM PUNKS OUT BEFORE I'M MARSHED.

DO YOU REALIZE IT'S ONE O'CLOCK! CALL IT A NIGHT AND COME ON TO BED, MEM.

MEET! I'M JUST GETTING STARTED. IT TAKES ME THIS LONG TO GET MARSHED UP. IF I KEEP AT IT NOW, I MAY BE ABLE TO FINISH IT BY TOMORROW NIGHT!

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Wednesday, January 19.

John Charles Thomas, celebrated American baritone, will be featured in a concert at 8:30 Wednesday night broadcast by WJZ, WJZ and KJZ. He will be supported by the Philharmonic Orchestra playing compositions of Beethoven, Brahms, Liszt and other great masters. (Immediately preceding this concert the same station will broadcast a new group of musicians called the Modern Art Gypsy Orchestra. Other eastern features include music by a "cello quartet from WJZ at 10:15 and light opera, Mania" through WEAF, WJZ, WJZ and WJZ at 10:20. Distance listeners can tune to WJZ at 10:30 for a Farmers' Week program which will include an address by Timothy A. Smiddy, minister from the Irish Free State. WJZ will also broadcast a chess at 10:40 and a hockey game at 10:45. The KOA minitels will dispel cheer starting at 10:15.

C. of C. Holds Annual Banquet

made in Kingston do not less eight of the fact that the enlargement of local industries and the bringing in of new industries is very essential to the growth of business and we, therefore, urge your continued support of the Chamber of Commerce to the end that this may be brought about. This is not the only function of the Chamber but it is a most important one.

Many of our retail merchants during the past year have made splendid improvements in their store fronts which is very commendable. It is not alone makes it possible to better display their merchandise but that it also is a great addition to the appearance of our streets and is a sure indication of progress.

Kingston Real Estate Board.

We reiterate that in unity there is strength. This is an accepted fact and thus each day we learn that business and professional men are grouping themselves into organizations with high standards of ethics not alone for their own advantage but for the advantage of those with whom they have business transactions.

At our last annual meeting our president in his remarks voiced the hope that the real estate brokers of Kingston might form an organization of their own. Tonight we are happy to tell you this has become an accomplished fact.

Through their affiliation with the State and National Board they will be able to help in legislative matters that have a direct bearing on the tax assessment levied on owners of real estate. We are told that real estate represents 53 per cent of the wealth of the people and pays 83 per cent of the taxes. The State Association of which the local board is now a part has been instrumental in preventing the passing of the legislature exempting property from taxes.

When you stop to consider that 22 per cent of the property in the State is exempt from taxes you will realize as soon comes to the conclusion that the tax burden is thus made much heavier for those that do pay taxes and that it is a situation that needs constant watching. This is only one of the many subjects your local board will have a part in handling for the benefit of the community at large.

The Chamber of Commerce wishes this new organization success in its endeavors.

Exposition.

The Kingston Exposition held this year in many ways proved to be most successful one held thus far. The general arrangement of the booths offered the exhibitor the best opportunity to display his wares, the result being most pleasing to the merchants. With a total attendance of about 18,000 it is evident that these exhibitions are a ready response on the part of the public and give to the exhibitor a really valuable advertising medium at a moderate cost. The actual sales made this year at the exposition were remarkably large. The placing of automobiles in booths added much to the appearance of the exposition and the testimony of the dealers shows that this arrangement worked to their advantage. Expositions of this nature, we believe, should be held every other year and this held are of great benefit to our community.

Kingston on the Air.

Station WDBZ has had an eventful career. Started by friends of the Ulster County Boy Scout Council and carried on by them for a time; then taken over by a group of individuals who felt it a worthwhile project and, finally, taken over by the Chamber last fall.

For several weeks past, different business houses have made it possible to broadcast the basketball games on Wednesday evenings. This offered them a good advertising medium. It also gave much pleasure to those who listened in. Favorable returns have been received from points in Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Western New York. Thanksgiving Day's game was not broadcast and over a hundred phone calls at the station that night proved beyond a doubt that it was a great disappointment to those living in what we term our Trade Territory.

The station now has become a "radio wire" to the Fair Street Methodist Church, the Governor Clinton Hotel and the State Armory and on December 19th, a Sunday afternoon program was broadcast from the Church of the Messiah at Rhinebeck.

The broadcasting of the Sunday morning services from the Fair Street Church is enjoyed by a very large number and the connections made with the hotel and armory make it possible to send out programs from time to time of much interest.

With the idea of making the station of still more value to Kingston place are now being developed that will result in a more regular use of the station to the advantage of Kingston merchants and to the pleasure of the radio audience.

The station is most fortunate in men who give their services to see that its operation is kept up to a high standard.

These gatherings were well attended, especially by our outside friends.

Our City Administration.

The relationship existing between various officials and departments of our city government and the Chamber of Commerce should be of a most friendly nature. Both the city administration and this organization have the best interests of the city at heart. The Chamber of Commerce of Kingston through its membership in the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has the opportunity to secure the experience of other cities throughout the country upon any problem that might come up for consideration and the reports from this source are always at the disposal of our membership and of the city administration. Again, the membership of our organization is composed of business and professional men and women, many of whom are taxpayers and all of whom are interested in things that have to do with the welfare of our city. Therefore, it is fairly obvious that we should have the opportunity to cooperate with all departments of the city administration.

At this time we wish to pay tribute to our late mayor, Morris Block. Our relationship with him was of the friendliest nature, which we trust will be continued by his successor, Mayor Dempsey, and those associated with him.

General Services.

Thus far in this report, we have enumerated some of the outstanding activities of your organization. There are many other services rendered by the Chamber which make it worthy of support.

At your place you will find a Kingston Booklet, 20,000 of which were sent outside the city to fine points of distribution where they would be placed in the hands of the touring public. Advertisements were carried in other magazines and papers from time to time but not to the extent we would like to have done, owing to lack of funds.

In other years many of our members have availed themselves of our facilities for putting out mimeograph work and we would be glad to have others do so at any time.

Our connection with the Investors Protective Department of the W. J. Burns International Detective Agency makes it possible for our members and others to secure reports on any firm offering stocks to investors. The fact that this service is here has the effect of keeping those offering unsound investments out of our city, to a large extent, and has been the means of saving many from making purchases of poor or fraudulent stock.

Another form of publicity service rendered by the Chamber is in the answering of the many letters received at our office asking particular information regarding Kingston and the surrounding territory. These letters have our careful attention and in many cases are turned over to such of our members who would especially benefit by them.

During the touring season we are called upon many times a day for road information which is always cheerfully given.

At the office there is a fine library of city directories that is kept up to date. This service is not used to the extent it should be but we want you to know that it is at your disposal.

Copies of the Congressional Record and all bills introduced at Albany are kept on file for your use if you desire to see them.

A close watch is kept on all legislation affecting business and other interests in the community and action taken in your interests when necessary. Other services could be listed but, perhaps, these will suffice to show that the organization is on the job, willing at all times to render aid and advice when called upon.

Kingston, let us speak frankly, needs civic leaders, organized effort and forethought and a sense of the individual responsibility of each and every citizen to the community in order to realize the future which ought to be ours. It needs the intelligent cooperation and the interest of every citizen, and a community spirit which is present only in inadequate measure. "No man by taking thought can add a cubit to his stature," but cities grow by intelligent forethought and interest in community affairs after happy fortune has singled them out as sites for industry, for homes such as we have and a location second to none.

Prosperity has come so easily, that most of us seem to think it will continue to come without effort on our part. The Kingston resident's interest in all too many cases is in his individual job. He needs to realize that private interest is also served by attention to the general public interest. We need a new appreciation of what Kingston is and what it has. This is a matter for every resident. We need a new desire and a resolution on the part of every citizen to do his or her part in helping to make Kingston what it should be.

In short, we need a general awakening of community consciousness and civic spirit, without which the things which must be done for Kingston will not be adequately done. Also, a general realization that Kingston is nothing more or less than the general body of its inhabitants who by taking thought can pour fresh life into the entire community.

"Give the dog a bad name" and you know what happens to him. And, "A good name is more to be desired than great riches," said Old King Solomon. Solomon knew his stuff.

In every city that has the reputation of being "a live town," you'll find most of the business men saying a good word for each other.

We're going to try to say a good word for you more often. Say one for us—and then you can endorse, every day, will you? Let's work together a little more closely.

If we'd boost your business, and you'd boost our business, we'd hear less complaint about poor business. When you know we're boosting for you, you'll boost for us. All of us want to help the men who help us, rather than spend our money with the fellow who doesn't give a hang for anything but our patronage.

We can boost more for each other—let's do it.

If we'd pull for you and you'd pull for us, the lead would be lighter for each of us.

Team work is what counts. That's just as true of business as of football. No one man can win a contest. When you put in a good word for your organization—the effect may be small. But when 1,000 other men do the same thing, the effect is irrefragable.

Let's pull together—for each other and for our city.

If we'd help solve your problems and you ours—We'd soon have a serious problem. Not many years ago all of us had "Business secrets"—and we guarded them closely. Today we're telling each other how we solved this problem and that one. We've found that the more all men know of business problems and their solution, the better for business—your business and ours.

We'll be glad to discuss problems with you at any time. Say when.

If we'd always boost Kingston—and you'd do the same, what a wonderful city we'd have.

Why don't we boost more for our town? I'll be hanged if I know the answer—do you? It costs nothing to boost—and it pays big.

If every Kingstonian would say one good word for Kingston each day, we'd double our business and our population, in incredibly short time.

We're going to boost more for Kingston. Will you join us?

If you "pass the buck" and we do the same what kind of a city shall we have?

It's quite the thing these days to "pass the buck" in other words "let George do it." It's the easiest way out—yes; but is it good citizenship?

We all probably pass the buck more than we realize. When we see on the street some man we admire for his fine qualities, do we envy him his "luck"?

Look up his record! Ten to one you'll find he's so busy he hasn't time to "pass the buck." So he's working for you and for us and for his town. That's why he's lucky.

I'm going to "pass the buck" less and less from now on. Are you with me?

Kingston, awake to your responsibility!

Members Who Have Died.

President Reben said that during the past year the Chamber of Commerce had lost the following members by death: William R. Harrison, L. S. Winne, Major James H. Everett, Palmer Canfield, E. O. Rose, F. W. Diehl, Mrs. Hattie Van Leuven, Mayor Morris Block and David Gill, Jr.

As he completed reading the list of the dead the banqueters stood in a minute of silent respect to their memory.

Words of Praise.

Several letters that had been received by the Chamber of Commerce thanking the organization for the assistance rendered were read by President Reben. The first was from Mr. Edgar Powley in regard to the sale of part of his dock property on the Rondout creek to the Texas Oil Company. This company has plans prepared for construction work that will cost at least $50,000, said Mr. Reben.

Another letter was from Joseph M. Herbert expressing appreciation for the assistance rendered in connection with leasing of two floors in the factory building at Mill street and Hasbrouck avenue to the Noben Manufacturing Company. Mr. Harris of the company was present at the dinner and was introduced by Mr. Reben. The company specializes in the manufacture of paper specialties for institution and home use.

John N. Corbitt wrote thanking the organization for securing the Matched Clank Company as a tenant for the building at Strand and Hasbrouck avenue. Louis Lakretz, proprietor of the company, was also introduced to the dinner.

Alfred Ronder, a resident of Kingston and a member of the Chamber of Commerce, was introduced. Mr. Ronder has made an audit of the Chamber's books for 1926, and as a consequence of his interest in the organization had rendered the service without compensation.

Schilling Is a Successor.

Francis J. Schilling, vice president of the Schilling Furniture Company, wrote that the organization "receives so many thanks from the untold number of its patrons for the service rendered for the past year it became necessary for us to add an extensive addition to our factory to care for our growing business. Because of the size of the building financial assistance was required to swing the properties. Our regular bank would have been glad to finance us but legal restrictions prevented their doing so. We went through the usual procedure of applying to the various savings banks for a moderate amount for mortgage on our property but without success. In fact, unnecessary red tape in getting a definite yes or no answer delayed our operations nearly three months.

"We operate a smaller branch factory in another city and the Chamber of Commerce of that city, knowing of the difficulty we were experiencing, made us a most loving suggestion, offering us a fully equipped plant of more than sufficient size, at a rental of one dollar per year for three years, and no more for ten years. The price of the property was very attractive and we had the privilege of making our own terms."

In closing, Mr. Schilling wrote that the directors of the company had practically decided to accept the offer of town offer when they called in Secretary Coe and laid the matter before him, and the Chamber of Commerce was able to arrange matters so that the company could proceed with their plans, build the addition and, continue to manufacture in Kingston, and we had the privilege of making our own terms."

President Reben's Report.

President Reben called attention to the fact that several former presidents of the organization were present and called upon Herbert Carl, Arthur J. Burns, John H. Gregory and Judge Joseph M. Fowler to arise. Mr. Reben called attention to the fact that all of them were interested in the new hotel, as was Frank R. Powley, a former treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce, and now treasurer of the Kingston Community Hotel.

The newly elected directors, Morris Samter, James A. Dwyer and Arthur J. Olivett, were also introduced.

Introduced President Flanagan.

E. Frank Flanagan, president of the Chamber of Commerce for 1927, was then introduced, and as he arose was greeted by the diners singing lustily "You're in the army now, you'll never get rich, digging a ditch, you're in the army now."

President Flanagan said he felt honored to be president of the Chamber of Commerce and more so since the fact that it had been brought out that the majority of the former presidents had jobs with the town hotel, and "probably" when his term expired he might be able to land a job also, which sally was greeted with laughter.

President Flanagan then recognized Judge Joseph M. Fowler, who paid a brief tribute to President Reben, and said he had appointed him a member of the board of child welfare, and he desired to offer a resolution that the Chamber of Commerce go on record as appreciating the untiring and efficient services rendered by Mr. Reben during the past year. The resolution was promptly seconded by Dr. M. J. successful close.

President Reben's Report.

President Reben called attention to the fact that several former presidents of the organization were present and called upon Herbert Carl, Arthur J. Burns, John H. Gregory and Judge Joseph M. Fowler to arise. Mr. Reben called attention to the fact that all of them were interested in the new hotel, as was Frank R. Powley, a former treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce, and now treasurer of the Kingston Community Hotel.

The newly elected directors, Morris Samter, James A. Dwyer and Arthur J. Olivett, were also introduced.

Introduced President Flanagan.

E. Frank Flanagan, president of the Chamber of Commerce for 1927, was then introduced, and as he arose was greeted by the diners singing lustily "You're in the army now, you'll never get rich, digging a ditch, you're in the army now."

In Mexico ~
it's "Laundry-day"
the whole week!

Even in a small family of two or three persons—among native Mexicans—one woman is assigned to the laundry work and spends the entire week doing it. Slow and laborious methods are the only ones they know.

Mexican servants are said to produce fair results with the flatiron—beaten over charcoal. But can you imagine any American woman, with her appreciation of the variety and freedom in living, tying up her every hour in this way?

But You Can Iron in an Hour or Two

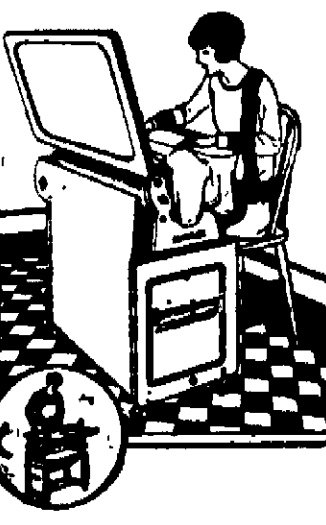

In two hours, or less, you can iron the entire week's washing in the Simplex ironer—with-out effort—with perfect results, using electric power, which is "harnessed up" to relieve you of burdensome tasks.

Aldermen Hear of Voting Machines

Representative of Company Explains Their Use—Committee Favors Salary Increase for Assistant City Judge—Other Matters Before Common Council.

Voting machines, the opening of the thoroughfares in the city cemeteries and the laying of telephone wires in underground conduits under the sidewalks were some of the matters discussed at the meeting of the common council held Tuesday evening at the city hall. Alderman Abram D. Reilly of Pine street, recently appointed by Mayor E. J. Dempsey, attended his first council session that evening.

All of the aldermen were present at the meeting except Alderman Finnelly of the Thirteenth ward, who had been excused.

Rate for Assistant City Judge.

The laws and rules committee reported that Local Law No. 7, providing for an increase in pay of from $500 to $1,000 a year for the assistant city judge, was correct as to form and it was given a second and third reading and will again be taken up at the February meeting.

Conduits Under Sidewalks.

The New York Telephone Company has been busy this winter laying conduits for the telephone system under the sidewalks on Broadway, and Alderman O'Reilly again brought up the question as to whether the telephone company had a franchise allowing them to do so without the consent of property owners whose walks were taken up.

Alderman Moore of the Third ward read a communication he had received from Corporation Counsel James Jenkins covering the matter in which Judge Jenkins stated that about twenty years ago the city had granted franchises to the Hudson River Telephone Company and the Citizens Telephone Company, later absorbed by the New York Telephone company, granting permission to lay underground conduits in streets and through public places, with the agreement that the telephone company was to maintain such portions torn up in good condition for a year. Since then, under the provisions of the city charter, the matter was under control of the board of public works.

No Hearing Necessary.

Alderman O'Reilly wanted to know if the telephone company after filing plans for conduits did not have to hold public hearings under easements held by property owners, and was informed that the original franchise covered that point.

Voting Machines Discussed.

Alderman DeGarmo, chairman of the special committee to investigate the question of using voting machines in Kingston, reported that the committee had visited several cities and had written a number of letters regarding the use of voting machines, and asked that the privilege of the floor be extended to Mr. Coffey, a representative of the United States Voting Machine Company, who explained how the machines were operated.

The matter was again referred to the committee with the request that a report be submitted later.

To Open Cemeteries.

Alderman Moore offered a resolution that the city cooperate with the local cemetery associations and open the main thoroughfares in the various cemeteries with the snow plows. It was referred to the board of public works.

Resolutions Introduced.

The following resolutions were introduced and referred to the city board.

Alderman Moore—That snow be plowed on Jansen avenue between Fullam avenue and East Chester street; that while snow is piled high in the gutters, an extra man be employed on the ash collecting rig.

Alderman Haines—That Roosevelt avenue and Wrentham street be cleared of snow.

Alderman Mann—That Chambers street be designated for coasting and that it be roped off between the hours of 4 and 5 p. m. daily and to 6 a. m. Saturdays; that Ann street be cleared of snow.

Alderman Radel—That snow be cleared from Spruce and German streets.

Alderman Sharkey—That fire alarm box be installed on Main street, midway between Mountain View and Fairview avenues.

The Council then adjourned.

CURRENT ACTIVITIES AT

STONE RIDGE GRANGE.

In spite of the drifted condition of the roads a goodly number of the members of Stone Ridge Grange were at the regular meeting on Monday evening, January 17.

The program was in charge of the 1927 lecturer, Miss Sara Lowbury. First a debate: "Shall New York state have a gasoline tax and if so, for what purpose shall the money so raised be used?"

Robert Service upheld the affirmative and Ross Overhondt the negative. Four noted men were born in January and brief sketches of their lives were given by the following: Benjamin Franklin, paper prepared by Mrs. Ira Oliver. Mrs. Oliver was able to be present so it was read by Alfred Hueston. Daniel Webster, prepared and read by Dorothy Allen. Robert E. Lee, prepared and read by Mrs. Ashton Hart. Thomas Jefferson Jackson (Monterelli), prepared by Mrs. Ross Overhondt and read by Ross Overhondt.

The crown and cake were served by Mr. and Mrs. Emma Bunch and Mr. and Mrs. William Affine.

The refreshment committee for January evening, February 7, will be: Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schenck and Edward Schenck, Jr.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO

Reception last night was the best in several weeks and the best of it was in the earlier part of the evening. Between 5 and 6 o'clock the volume and tone of WEAF, WJZ and WMAN bordered on the miraculous.

Selectivity was also excellent. There was no difficulty in tuning in WEAF without interference from WJZ, which is pretty near the extreme test.

Then there was a mystery in the air between 9 and 10 o'clock. Some station sending on about 620 meters, where nothing but Morse code has ever right to be, had a tenor, a soprano and a tinkling piano. It was very weak and the station announcement was not clear. The signal heard was not a harmonic from WJZ.

WEAF or some other strong station, as every strong station capable of being the source of the signal was looked out and found to be using an entirely different program from that heard on 620 meters. There is no "Up" and "Down" in the country, Canada, right.

Mexico or Cuba using this wave. There are stations in Europe but they would not be likely to be operating at from 2 to 7 o'clock in the morning.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES.

The first half of the Midwinter Carnival being held at Radio-Kingston Theatre all this week will terminate tonight and the excellent vaudeville will be staged for the last time with the cinema attraction, "The Campus Film". A complete change of program will be enacted Thursday and the vaudeville that will be exhibited is promoted by the management to be of the same sterling quality as that which opened the carnival. The picture for the latter half of the week will be "Forever After", a Paramount production taken from the story by the famous writer, Zane Grey.

The Auditorium Theatre will offer "Forever After" the last time tonight. Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes are the stars of the production, which critics say is a picture that will please all.

The Ophelia Theatre will present the double feature, "Hands Off" and "Flame of Argentina".

27 germ diseases your hands may carry home

Remove germs, as well as dirt, with this purifying toilet soap

COUNTLESS times each day your hands come in contact with germs.

Door-knobs, money, public telephones, car-straps—these are only a few of the many things you must touch, all of which may transmit germs to your hands.

Is it any wonder that health authorities say hands are among the chief carriers of sickness? Note below list of 27 germ diseases hands may spread.

Surely for your own sake—for the sake of others—you'll gladly take this simple protective measure. Wash hands oftener—always—with the purifying toilet soap that removes germs, as well as dirt.

Makes skin feel fine

In millions of homes Lifebuoy is the favorite toilet soap. Young and old alike enjoy its cleansing and refreshing qualities.

Lifebuoy's bland, soothing oils make the skin healthier—keep it clear and satin-smooth. Its gentle, antiseptic cleanser sweeps perspiration odors.

And, above everything else, Lifebuoy offers real measure of protection against germ diseases. Its antiseptic lather removes germs, as well as dirt.

An agreeable hygienic scent you'll learn to love

Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different.

Not a perfume, but a clean, pleasantly hygienic scent which proves Lifebuoy gives greater protection. Even before you've finished your first cake, you'll learn to love this cleanest of all soap scents, which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Without its antiseptic, Lifebuoy would still be a wonderful toilet soap—but it wouldn't give you the same measure of protection.

Like millions of others, once you form the Lifebuoy habit, you'll wonder how any other soap ever satisfied you.

Safer—yet costs no more

You wash and bathe with some soap anyway. So why not use Lifebuoy, which costs no more—probably less—than the soap you are now using? The protection it gives you is actually free.

You can get Lifebuoy wherever soap is sold. You will know it by the red box and the cake—orange-red, the color of its pure palm-fruit oils.

Around Orchard

MANURE IS GOOD FOR YOUNG TREES

The spreading of manure on the surface around growing trees will be beneficial; and it will not matter whether the manure is new or old. But there is one important provision in connection, especially when handling fresh manure: do not pile it up against the tree, but leave at least a foot of space, around the trunk, spreading the manure farther back where it will really do most good. Nothing is quite so good for keeping trees in a thrifty growing condition as light mulching coupled with thorough, clean cultivation, but where regular systematic cultivation cannot be practiced it is next best to spread enough mulch between trees to keep the weeds and grass down. This surface covering may be composed of most any material available, including manure, straw and hay. The heavier the material used, the thinner it should be spread, and as a rule, some 6 or 8 inches depth of the lighter materials is enough, adding some each year as it wears away. If applied too heavily, there is little show of roots getting moisture from any but the heaviest of rains, as it takes considerable water to wet through this sort of mulching.

Fresh manure should never be used in connection with the roots of trees or other plants, when planting them, but when placed on the surface there is little danger of injury, providing the application is not too heavy. Where the soil is already plenty fertile enough, it is best to use straw or hay, applying the manure moderately on top of this to prevent blowing, and applying most manure where soils are lighter. Any time of year is good for applying mulching. When applied in the fall there is protection for the roots over winter, in case of light snows. Removing a part of the mulch in early spring, and cultivating the ground so it will warm, then applying the mulch again about June 1, will give the very best of results in growth.

Control Serious Apple Tree Borer During Fall

Fall is the time of the year to rid apple trees of the young worms of the round-headed apple tree borer, the most destructive borer attacking apple trees in Illinois, according to J. H. Bigger, assistant entomologist of the Illinois state natural history survey. At that time of the year the young worms are burrowing in the inner bark of the tree and are not hard to locate and destroy.

The round-headed borer generally lives for two years in the tree, although some of them have known a three-year cycle. The adults emerge in the spring about blooming time, and after about two weeks lay their eggs in cracks and crevices or in holes (by themselves) in the bark of the tree near the base of the trunk. The larvae which hatch from these eggs during the summer burrow into the inner bark and feed there until fall when they go deeper into the woody area of the tree. There the feeding of the second season is done and there they pupate and emerge the next, or second, spring as beetles.

"It will be seen from this that fall is the time to locate the young borers and get rid of them most easily and economically. Various means have been tried to control these pests, but the knife and wire remains the best so far as found. All apple growers should go into their orchards very soon with a knife and wire and examine their trees near the base of the trunk for the holes and reddish castings from the borers of borers, and cut them out or kill them with a wire."

Fall Pruning of Fruit Trees Meets With Favor

Fruit trees may well be pruned in the fall, advise men at the New York State College of Agriculture. The best time to do this important job is after the apple trees have shed their leaves. The wounds may dry back, but no serious disease can be expected pruning almost any time when the trees are not in leaf.

Many apple and pear trees carry too much weak wood. A pruning distributed over the tree will help correct this. Many small cuts will heal better than two or three large ones, and the removal of large limbs is likely to cause scald and decay.

The smaller cuts and lighter pruning reduce the number of winter sprouts, rejuvenate the fruit spurs, and give a better set of fruit. Trees pruned in this way are more easily sprayed, have bigger and better colored fruit, and will produce a crop worth more money.

Young Trees Girdled

Young fruit trees are almost bound to be girdled by either rabbits or mice if they are left unprotected.

Clear away all trash, leaves, grass and rubbish of all sorts from about the trees. After removal from the snow, carefully check each tree.

In doing this work be careful not to leave a hollow or depression about the trunk of the tree. Better mound the soil up sufficiently than to leave such water holes to favor winter injury.

Eyes of Earthworms

Dr. Walter N. Hale of Johns Hopkins announces that earthworms have eyes in every section of their bodies. With a small lens of light he found every segment sensitive to light. He was able to identify the dark cells that respond to light.

Knocked for a Loop!

The Patrol Boat No. 239, commanded by the schooner Mary F. Anderson off Vineyard Haven, Mass., rolled over and wrecked itself. The crew of seven were saved, and not all were washed, so quickly did it happen. The patrol boat had a hole torn in its side, and the schooner was slightly damaged.

The Talking Corpse

The late Harry Houdini, the magician, famous for his many exposures of spiritualistic frauds, used to tell a story about Bob Burdette.

"Bob Burdette," he would begin, "was a Philadelphia preacher and a great humorist. Well, Bob once officiated at the funeral of a Wawa spiritist, and at the end of his address the dead man's wife rose from her seat in a front pew and said that while Burdette had been speaking she had been in spiritual communication with her husband, who had told her that the preacher's picture of the after life was somewhat trash."

"To the silence that followed Burdette rose."

"Friends," he said, "I have preached in my time over 2,000 funeral sermons, and this is the first occasion I have ever had any back-chat from the corpse."

Bright Children

The old idea used to be that the exceptionally bright little boy, the coming genius, was usually weak physically, unenduring, and emotionally unstable. That idea has to be discarded entirely, according to a report just put out by the noted psychologist, L. M. Terman, who has made an elaborate study of 1,000 exceptionally bright children. If there is any variation from the normal at all, he says, the gifted child is usually of better physical and nervous condition.

"The superiority of the gifted child is evidenced at a very early age, in the majority of cases," says Doctor Terman. "Among the most commonly mentioned indications are intellectual curiosity, wealth of miscellaneous information, and desire to learn to read."

Henry Ford Reopens "Mary's" Little Red School

The little red schoolhouse at Sterling, Mass., said to be the one to which the team followed Mary, was reopened at Sudbury, Mass., where Henry Ford had moved. Ford is shown with Edith Mahon, the first pupil.

Honor Among Thieves

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

THE "Honor Among Thieves" club was formed in the beginning more or less in the spirit of fun. Then, as the young girls of Alhambra, banded together in that secret society, began to mature, the club took on a more serious meaning.

There were all types of girls in the club. They were banded together in inviolable bonds to guard the wealth of one another, especially in affairs of the heart. If one of their members was being courted by one of the opponents of the H. A. T. to sweep into the man's credence as a possible husband and in all ways try to keep the future happiness of their affiliated member.

Always when a love affair cropped up there was a meeting of the H. A. T. and the situation discussed openly from its very inception—the member herself giving full details up to date.

After that the girls were regular headquarters on the track of a doomed youth—doomed, at least, if there was anything in his past or present that could put him out of the running.

One day Ivy Chandler told the H. A. T. of her engagement to Gregory Wells.

"Don't hardly credit," she told the meeting, "that I have become engaged to a man who hardly looks a girl who from a walking girl and who doesn't dance, walk or talk in any degree, but—there you are."

"That's a pretty good-looking fellow," said one of the members, "but what are his credentials?"

By Ivy Chandler

you'll have to put your smart heads on the count." For a moment Ivy's eyes grew thoughtful. "I do sometimes think that—well, other greater soul-stirring depths were in me or less in Gregory."

There was just a moment's silence among the members, then Doris Kenyon's soft voice broke it. "Perhaps loving so splendid a man with all those deep places—love does wonderful things to us."

"I'm afraid the 'deeps' aren't here—that's the trouble. Now if it were you, Doris, well—it would be a different affair."

The club agreed unanimously that Ivy and Doris must meet. And it was not long before Doris and Gregory had been introduced. Ivy's future happiness being in the balance. It was one of the club's most frequent means of discussing suitability in marriage—they chose their most likely couple and set out to work. If the man fell he was not considered a fit mate.

Therefore when Gregory Wells again came to Alhambra to visit Ivy he was presented to many of the Honor Among Thieves club girls, and among them was Doris.

Gregory shook hands with all the girls and his most genial high-spirited smile greeted them all. Then—Doris found her hand in his. The smile faded but his eyes, though it flashed on his lips and her fingers over Ivy's, were his own. "Hello, Doris," he said and they did not speak.

She looked up a few moments later and saw her own laughing face and found that with an apparently effortless effort she could still with Gregory in a value that did not waver with the casual life coming and going.

"That's it, Doris," commented Ivy laughingly.

Doris was for them. All the secret society of her nature and duty awakened, long buried in her voice, and even Ivy held her breath to listen. When she had finished her story or story, she went out on the wide veranda to sit in silence.

"Gregory Wells followed her out. Ivy watched him go and a queer little smile played about her lips.

"Outside in the clear moonlight, Gregory reached the balcony and which Doris leaned. She looked straight up at him, the moon shining into the depths of her eyes. Gregory put his hand over his eyes and his laugh swept her being, as by a mighty wave.

"Don't," she said swiftly. "I am Ivy's best friend."

"It wouldn't make the slightest difference," Gregory Wells said. "Nothing would make any difference now—it must be—it couldn't be otherwise." His voice shook.

"Please send Ivy out-to-me," said Doris. "I want her."

"Ivy," said Doris steadily when her friend reached her side. "I am going to throw over the duties of the Honor Among Thieves club. I cannot keep your Gregory because he's the only man in the world I could ever love" (she was a bit breathless) "and I want you to know I care too much for you to—ah," her voice became inaudible.

A happy laugh escaped Ivy, then she slipped her arm around Doris. "Don't, don't take it so hard. A marriage between you and Gregory would be of Heaven itself, while with us it would only be of the earth. There aren't so many great big love affairs that we can afford to let one slip by—there, there, dear, please don't cry. I shall be really happy only with some golf champion or baseball fan—and I'll be a far better friend to Gregory than I would ever be a wife." And with her queer little smile she slipped back into the house to send a man out to his wife.

Innovation at Downtown Bank

First National Bank's Doorman
Wears Uniform Similar to That Worn by Doorman in Modern New York City Banks—Uniform Is Very Natty.

The First National Bank of this city has adopted an innovation in having the doorman wear a uniform similar to that worn by the doorman at the big New York city banks. The doorman wore the uniform for the first time while on duty at the bank at Broadway and Strand today.

The uniform is a natty gray, somewhat similar to those worn by the United States letter carriers, and it made a decided hit with the bank's patrons. The cap worn is also of gray material with a shield on the peak titled "Special Officer".

The downtown bank is the first bank in the city to adopt the style made popular by the big New York city banks.

Smith Supporters Concede Defeat

Washington, Jan. 19 (P).—His eligibility questioned from both sides of the Senate chamber, Frank L. Smith of Illinois waited today for a decision which, at best, promised him little satisfaction.

With few exceptions, the senators divided into two groups, one bent on denying him admission pending further inquiry into the financing of his primary campaign, the other asking that he be sworn in as a senator and his fitness investigated afterward.

As the fight developed, those contending for temporary admission appeared to be conceding that they were beaten. They were led by Deneen of Illinois, and included many of the other Republicans regulars. The exclusionists were led by Reed of Missouri, chairman of the Campaign Funds Committee, and included in their ranks most of the Democrats and Republican insurgents.

Society Notes

Kerkhous, Jan. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Decker were given a surprise party on Tuesday evening by a party of friends. All in attendance had an enjoyable time and rehashed the delicious refreshments served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Hector Osterhoudt, Mr. and Mrs. S. Schubert Choral Club Dance.

A most delightful dance was given by the Schubert Choral Club in the Auditorium of the Y. W. C. A. Saturday evening. Although the weather was most inclement some one hundred and twenty were present to enjoy the hospitality of the club. Refreshments were served and two delightful little dances, Miss Frances Flann and Miss Longtree, added an interesting note to the evening's pleasure. Both these charming and talented little girls are to be congratulated on having as their teacher, Miss Helen Cashion. The Schubert Choral Club will give their first winter concert February 28, in the Auditorium of the Kingston High School.

Lowell Club.

On Tuesday afternoon the Lowell Club met at the home of Mrs. Adams and there were two excellent and very interesting papers given. Miss Baker had a paper on "Granada, Past and Present" and "Stained Glass Tours: Spanish Architecture" was the subject of Mrs. Schoonmaker's paper. Final arrangements were made for the open Federation meeting which will be held in the chapel of the First Reformed Church on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with the Lowell Club acting as hostess club following the business session. They will present Mrs. Purdy of Mount Vernon, president of the State Federation, as speaker for the afternoon. On invitation of Mrs. Virgil R. Van Wageningen, president, and Mrs. E. G. Adams, vice president of the Lowell Club, the members of the club will have luncheon with their distinguished guest at the Stuyvesant before the meeting. Next week the Lowell Club will meet with Mrs. Baster.

JUDGE DECIDES FIFTY-ONE MILES SAFE

Typical Style of Western Bus.

E. P. Middleton, judge of Urbana, Ohio, is getting not only a liberal amount of publicity for himself, but his desk is stacked high with letters asking for copies of a recent ruling made by him that a speed of 51 miles an hour was not unsafe. In fact, he said it was just about right for safety, but, of course, it depended wholly upon other conditions.

The ruling was made in the case of the state of Ohio against the driver of a bus operating between Lima and Urbana. The driver was arrested by two officers, who happened to be passengers, and who swore the speed attained "part of the time" was 51 miles an hour. The driver, E. A. Larrick, was indicted, tried and found not guilty.

Judge Middleton held that "a driver may go 45 miles an hour and still not be guilty of speeding, if the pavement is dry, the road clear and the car in good mechanical condition."

"If a driver were to pass a school house at recess time at a speed greater than 35 miles per hour he might be found guilty of traveling too fast, but with a clear, wide roadway ahead, without curves, and a car mechanically perfect, 51 miles an hour is not in excess of the so-called lawful or legal limit."

REGISTRATION ESTIMATE FOR 1926 SHOWS SLIGHT INCREASE.

Revised registration figures reported to the bureau of public roads, Department of Agriculture, show an increase of 1,927,141 vehicles registered during the first six months of 1926 as compared with the corresponding period of 1925, an increase of 10.8 per cent.

Total motor vehicle registration for the six months, according to the revised figures, was 19,697,832 vehicles. This is 118,044 in excess of the figures published July 29 in Motor Age.

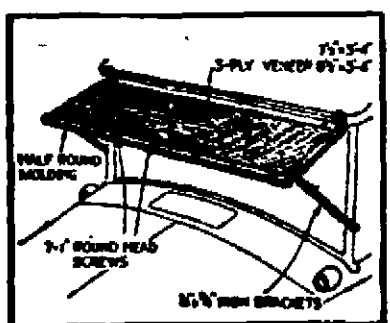

The following are the revised registration figures for the first six months of 1926, covering cars and trucks:

AUTOMOBILE FACTS

He isn't the "innocent pedestrian" after he has acquired the joy-riding habit.

Almost anybody can own a car, but comparatively few have learned their driving lessons.

When riding in somebody else's car, don't be a back-seat driver. Give him a chance to drive.

The early bird catches something else if he lets his engine run and idles on the neighbors.

It's well that we are building new highways, with the automobile motor speed-ers acting as if they own the road.

It's your car against who buys the car with the idea that he can let it remain idle until gasoline gets cheaper.

Another reason attempting to enter into a new business is because there is so much less from gravel to come.

WAR ON SCHOOL-CHILDREN LIFTS

Warnings Issued Against Dangerous Practice.

Almost simultaneously Traffic Commissioner Donahue of Washington, D. C., and the American Automobile association came forward with timely warnings to motorists against the dangerous practice of giving "pick ups" rides to children on their way to and from school.

The traffic commissioner branded the practice as a breeding of street accidents in which children, playing on the high-shoulders of the motorist, are often the victims.

The least that family happens, Donahue declares, is a nasty traffic snarl created by the distraction resulting from a child's cry for a lift and the interruption of the flow of traffic as the "big-hearted" motorist makes his way toward the curb in an effort to gratify the wish of the child.

Causes of Accidents.

"Hundreds of accidents are caused annually because children do not realize that this practice constitutes one of the gravest of highway hazards and parents and motorists should concentrate their energies on discouraging this habit which seems to be manifesting itself on a constantly larger scale," the A. A. A. national headquarters declared.

Appeal to Parents.

In the opinion of both Donahue and officials of the national motor-vehicle body, the problem calls for full co-operation on the part of parents and motorists. Neither, they declare, can afford to shirk responsibility in the matter. Teachers, too, can do much toward discouraging the child from taking such rides.

Turn Spare Tire

Something that the rear of the car is the wrong place to carry a spare tire, the official car owner at least tries to make the best of it. That is why he makes it a point to turn the spare around now and again, so that one side of the tire will not stay exposed to the sun, water and oil from the road. If the tire carrier is such that the spare must hang in the same position all the time, at least the tire can be turned.

New Angles on Cobb-Speaker

'Crookedness' Had No Part Declares Dan Johnson—Real News Expected When Landis Faces Johnson.

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker were let out of the American League, Dan Johnson, president of the league, said today, because of incompetency. He added that there was no crookedness involved and that the Leonard charges against them were inconsequential. Johnson revealed a number of new angles to the celebrated case, which is due for a new hearing here Monday, but all related to laxness or over zealousness in managerial duties, and contained no hint of scandal.

The American League president, who severely criticized Baseball Commissioner Landis for making public the Leonard charges, mentioned Cobb's handling of players as "not to be tolerated in the American League," and his personal count against Speaker related to betting on horse races.

"Talk of crookedness had no part in our decision to demand the resignations of these two managers. They simply were not equal to their jobs, and so they had to go."

This new and vital sidelight on the Cobb-Speaker case, publicity, around which led to investigation of 1917 scandal charges, and the unloading of a host of vague rumors of other baseball irregularities, gave a rather new aspect to the possibility that any sensational disclosures would be made here Monday.

A real row, however, seems to be brewing in two quarters. One relates to what will come to pass when President Johnson and his American League meet here preliminary to the conference with Landis, and the other what will come of the Johnson-Landis feud when the two baseball leaders face each other. Landis is assured of the support of some of the club owners in Johnson's circuit, including President Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox, who has been inimical to Johnson for many years.

Despatches from the baseball conference at French Lick Springs quoted Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, as saying "Johnson should have resigned two years ago."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
By F. A. WALKER

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS MAKE-BELIEVE WHISKERS

FROM the famous museum of the University of Pennsylvania comes the news of the discovery of the oldest portrait of a human being in the form of a picture of Ur-Sin, the last king of Ur, known to Bible students as Ur of the Chaldees.

The interesting thing about this portrait is that the ancient king is shown smooth shaven, while almost every other portrait of the prehistoric rulers shows them with a prodigious display of whiskers.

The official explanation of this kind of fashion of beards is that the gods of those ancient times were all conceived of and pictured as wearing long beards, and the rulers, in order to inspire in their subjects and for themselves a veneration approaching that bestowed on deity, decreed that all reproductions of their countenances should be clothed with imposing beards.

The make-believe tendency of the human mind has always been to impress the unknown with a false appraisal.

The poor girl buys and wears a rabbit or cat-skin coat dyed a beautiful brown in the hope that the passer-by will think it originally was worn by a sportive seal.

The rich man goes to the opera and suffers through an evening of music which he does not understand nor enjoy in order that he may impress some of his friends with the idea that he has reached the point in culture where arias and cadenzas, tempo and phrasing mean something definite to his dollar-filled mind.

We all of us indulge ourselves to a greater or less extent in make-believe. We all wear some kind of whiskers to make ourselves look like what we are, not. But sooner or later we are all found out.

The Chaldean king ruled more than four thousand years ago, but at last we know that his face was smooth and that his whiskered presentment, if he ever copied the custom of his times, was for the purpose of making people believe him to be what he really was not.

We all of us show our real selves sooner or later. The veneer which we put on cracks and the real thing that is underneath shows through.

What we should have done was not to cover up that of which we were ashamed with an imitation of something better. We should have made the thing underneath into a reality of which we had reason to be proud.

Make-believe doesn't pay. It didn't pay the king of Ur. It will not pay you.

Shakespeare, who wrote wisely on more subjects than any other writer of all time, put the thought of personal honesty and individual frankness into the mouth of Polonius in words that should be a part of the creed of every man, woman and child: This above all—To thine own self be true: And it must follow, as the night the day, Thou canst not then be false to any man. John Paul Jones
John Paul had a reason for not commiserating to his family or making public why he took the same journey as to account for R. the famous incident of a player by the name of Jones making William Paul his heir was involved. There was no such player. William Paul lived and died. William Paul and by his will left his property to his sister (his will being recorded at Frederickburg, Va., where William lived). John Paul assumed the name of Jones before he came to Virginia in 1775—Punchbinder Magazine.

White Sox Roster Best in Years

Added to the infield—Veteran Catcher Schalk Will Run Team as Manager.

Chicago, Jan. 19 (AP)—A heraldic combination of the 1921 world series. Aaron Ward at second base and Roger Peckinpaugh at shortstop, have been added to the infield of the Chicago White Sox this winter, giving the Sox the strongest roster they have had in several years.

From their own ranks the Sox have drawn a new manager for this year, one of the seven new pilots in the major leagues, the veteran catcher, Ray Schalk. Coming to the Sox in 1913 from Milwaukee, Schalk has caught more than 100 games a year with one or two exceptions. He is one of the few playing managers left in the big leagues, and when the place of Eddie Collins, who went back to his original club, the Philadelphia Athletics, was vacated from the Sox management.

Ward, who has spent his major league career in a New York Yankee uniform, will fill the gap at second base caused by the passing of Collins. White Sox, obtained from Washington, will play short. Joe Judge and Sam Rice, two high left-handed youngsters, will back up these veteran infield men, with Bill Koenig at third and Earl Staley at first.

Service pitchers and a catcher were traded for Ward and Peck, but the Sox still have plenty of battery strength. Schalk, ready for the four-fourth position in the major leagues, expects to do lots of catching this year. In addition to running the team as manager, Buck Crow and Harry McCurdy stand ready to help him behind the bat.

The pitching staff, headed by a veteran, has had few additions to winter. Red Faber, Ted Lyons, Blankenship, Alphonse Thomas and George Connally are the mainstay. Blankenship's brother Homer has been called back for another major league tryout this spring. Bert O of the coast league and Chad Burnabee, two likely southpaws, will be taken south this spring.

The Sox outfield also is unchanged with Bill Falk, Johnny Mottel and Bill Barrett composing the regular triad.
